

SOME BIG FARES AT BOSTON PIER

TWENTY-FIVE ARRIVALS ON HAND
THIS MORNING WITH ALL VARIETIES.

Receipts at the Boston fish pier this morning aggregated 531,000 pounds of groundfish, 411 swordfish, 318,000 pounds of fresh mackerel, 15 barrels of salt mackerel and 71,000 pounds of mixed fish. There was a slight tendency to improvement in prices.

Big fares were the rule among the swordfish and seiners. Sch. Hazel M. Jackson brought in a fare of 166 swordfish, while the Olympia hailed for 90,000 mackerel. Six seiners brought from 20,000 to 90,000 pounds each while the swordfishers had from 41 to 166 fish.

N. S. Dried Fish.

All the vessels of the Lunenburg fleet, save one, have now reported for their second spring trip; 64 vessels have landed 54,000 quintals of fish, an average of 849 quintals per vessel, which we think is about the same as the second spring trip of last year, says the Halifax Maritime Merchant. Weather conditions for the past fortnight have on the whole been excellent for drying and it is expected a very considerable quantity of fish will be ready for marketing by the first of July. What the price of the new catch will be, however, we are unable to say. Porto Rico has held steady but, on the whole, consumption is disappointing and it is feared there will be another break in prices down there when the fish from the second spring trip of the Lunenburg fleet begin to arrive. European markets at present seem to be wanting light salted codfish, but the demand for the heavy salted European article is decidedly weak. Iceland and Norway are making sales of these at a level of prices much below market quotations here. The Brazil markets, both North and South, are still in the weak condition which has characterized them for some time past.

Quiet at New York.

There were no arrivals at Fulton Market, New York, this morning, and no flounders or haddock in the market. A few cod were offered and brought 10 cents per pound.

SAVE LOBSTERMAN OFF LAND'S END

Howard Parsons, Upset from Dory After Leaving Salt Island, Owes Life to Presence of Rescuers

Howard Parsons of Witham street woke up last night to find himself in the Addison Gilbert hospital, having been removed there in the automobile of the Rockport police department late yesterday afternoon. The last Howard remembered was that he cast loose his dory from Salt Island and started to row ashore. Two lobster fishermen sighted his up-turned dory floating off of the beach and Land's End, Rockport, and a short distance away was the occupant, also floating.

They rowed down to where Parsons was and tried to get him into the boat, but because of his condition they could not lift him over the gunwale, so they tied a rope under his arms, made the other end fast to the dory thwart, and towed him ashore.

The Rockport police were notified and took Parsons to the office of Dr. Ezra E. Cleaves, who gave him first aid, and got him breathing normally and then, because he seemed pretty well used up and was bleeding, sent him to the hospital, where he will remain until he has recovered from his sudden immersion.

SHORT STORY HERE TODAY

SWORDFISH TRIP

NETS CRAFT $4000

A new record for the Boston Fish Pier was made yesterday with the arrival of the schooner Hazel Jackson of Nantucket from Georges Banks. The fare of 166 swordfish, at 18 cents a pound, brought $4000, and the trip was emptied in 1 1-2 hours.

So far as known these are records for the pier. The cargo was bought by O'Hara Brothers, dealers on the pier.

Each member of the crew received $310 for his share. This is the second trip made by the schooner this season, the crew receiving for the two trips $730 apiece. The boat was gone two weeks.
